CREWS FORMED TO TAKE BODIES FROM WRECKAGE

Tragedy Sets New Record For Deaths In American Crash

HOPE TO COMPLETE REMOVAL BY NIGHT

Searchers Struggle Over Cliffs And Through Deep Slush

(By Associated Press)
SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 19.—A ground searching party reached the wreckage of the "Mainliner" high in the Utah mountains today and found all 19 occupants of the luxurious air transport dead.

Ralph Johnson, a United Airlines pilot and one of a group of four who kept going all night in the treacherous snow, informed L. D. Cuddeback, division superintendent, that a survey of the wreckage by flashlight showed no sign of life.

Assemble Crews
After Johnson brought out word of the tragedy—the greatest number of persons ever killed in an American airplane crash—the air line quickly assembled officials, airplanes and ground workers to bring out the bodies.

The Knight, Wyo., airport, 26 miles to the north, was made the base of operations.

Cuddeback said Johnson went up to the big airplane, "peered in and found that the 16 passengers and crew of three were dead."

Because of the condition of the wreckage on towering Chalk peak, Johnson was unable to make a complete investigation.

He wasted no time, but started immediately down the mountainside for help.

The great airliner had been missing since 8:16 p. m. (Mountain time, 10:16 E. S. T.) Sunday when it was enroute from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Salt Lake City.

It was first sighted from the air yesterday morning in the most difficult sort of terrain—it crashed at about the 10,000 foot level.

Full Moon Aids
Johnson's searching party was aided towards dawn by an almost full moon, but the bitter cold made the going difficult.

Johnson made no report as to the condition of the victims' bodies. Airline officials declined to speculate as to how long it would take to remove the bodies, but expressed hope that it would be done by tonight.

The searchers struggled over treacherous cliffs and through deep slush up the trail-less Chalk peak. From the outset there had been virtually no hope that any of the occupants survived, and today's discovery established the tragedy as the worst in the history of American plane crashes.

NICK HEARING IS POSTPONED

Second Delay In Lisbon Murder Trial Is Announced

LISBON, Oct. 19.—A second postponement in the first degree murder trial of George Nick was disclosed today by county officials.

The delay came after the selection yesterday of a jury, composed of five women and seven men, to try Nick, accused of killing Chris Bazarus here in 1929.

May Return to Lima
The trial was originally slated for Sept. 8, but counsel for Nick won a delay to the present time. With the announcement of the second postponement, it is rumored that the defendant will be returned to Lima state hospital, from whence he came, to undergo a new sanity test.

The selection of the jury yesterday consumed the entire day. In choosing 12 of the jurors the defense used three of the four peremptory challenges allowed and the state, two. In selecting the alternate juror who holds only in case one of the 12 jurors is excused for cause, 16 veniremen were examined.

The jurors include Peter Thomas, Wellsville; Willis Hole, Mrs. Ernest Fisher, C. E. Phillips, Salem; Mrs. Jennie Webber, Mrs. Harlan Finley, Mark Brownlow, Edward Green and Mrs. Beatrice Wooden, East Liverpool; W. A. Robinson, Wayne township; Mrs. Mary Feezle of Rogers; Felix Butch, Lisbon. The alternate juror is Lawrence Swearingen of Wellsville.

Triangle Case
Nick is alleged to have shot and fatally wounded Bazarus in November, 1929, under the impression his victim was paying attention to Nick's wife. He was indicted in December and given a sanity hearing the month following which resulted in his commitment to the Lima State hospital.

Released in June on a writ of habeas corpus the defendant was returned to Lisbon and held in the county jail to await trial on a first degree murder charge.

Message Of Red Cross Is Universal

Members Become Partners In World Wide Welfare Work

Partnership under the Red Cross emblem is the theme of this year's American Red Cross roll call which opens Oct. 24.

The Red Cross appeal is universal for every kind of a person works for it. Every kind of a person benefits by it.

Most important of all is the growing number of Americans who through memberships, annually become partners in this work.

The number of persons aided in disaster during the year by National Red Cross was approximately 1,360,000 at an expenditure of $23,462,208.40.

Various Disaster Types
During the year there were many types of disaster, cloudbursts, dust storms, earthquakes, epidemics, explosions, fires, hail storms, forest fires, land slides, hurricanes, mine explosions, mine fires, tornadoes, truck accidents, typhoons and floods. Those leading in number were fires, floods and tornadoes.

This following year Salem wishes to organize an active disaster relief committee ready to cope with anything that might happen again in Salem. National Red Cross spent $72,000 during the fever epidemic of 1920 and 1921 in Salem. Only 12 states escaped some kind of a disaster during the last year. We know not when disaster will strike.

There were 24 floods in the past year. When the floods abated, the work for the Red Cross was not done. They rehabilitated 97,000 families in their homes. One million sixty-three thousand women and children in 182 counties in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas were flooded and refugees from these LISBON, Oct. 19 — Henceforth Jack and Jill, twin children of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Robinson of N. Market st., will be careful as to the kind of "candy" they put in their mouths.

The little pills they ate Monday morning almost proved their undoing.

The boy and the girl, age two, were awakened from their sleep when their father came in from an emergency call early in the morning, and after Dr. Robinson went back to bed they went downstairs. Seeing his coat downstairs they reached for his pockets and obtained pills given ordinarily to adults needing a powerful heart stimulant.

F. B. I. REVEALS $50,000 RANSOM IN ROSS CASE

Family Pays Money For Return Of Retired Manufacturer

NO WORD HEARD FROM ABDUCTORS

8 A. M. Today Was Deadline Set For Victim's Return

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—D. M. Ladd of the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today the family of Charles S. Ross, retired greeting card manufacturer, had paid $50,000 ransom for Ross' return.

Ladd's statement said his department could give no information as to the details of the payment which "was handled entirely by the family upon what they believed to be definite proof they were in contact with the kidnapers."

8 A. M. Deadline
Ross was kidnaped 24 days ago and at 8 a. m. today, the deadline set by Mrs. Ross for word from the abductors, she had received no word from them.

"We of course could not be a party to the payment of a ransom in a kidnaping case," Ladd's statement said, "and necessarily same was handled by the family. As we are advised, the family upon payment of the money waited for a reasonable period of time beyond the time the kidnapers indicated they would release Mr. Ross and then made a final appeal to the kidnapers for the release of Mr. Ross, as was received by the various papers Sunday afternoon, Oct. 17."

Ladd said the payment was made in bills of $5, $10 and $20 denominations.

Sends Out Numbers

"We, of course, desire the papers give as wide publicity as possible to these lists of serial numbers of the bills which have been distributed to the usual sources and that you indicate to the public that it is the desire of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that the public be on the alert for the appearance of these bills either as now in their possession or as subsequently may be received by them."

WPA EMPLOYEE TAKES OWN LIFE
Charles Allen Buckley, East Liverpool, Also Wounds Wife; Despondency Blamed

EAST LIVERPOOL, Oct. 19.—Walter Allen Buckley, 54, employed as a carpenter with the WPA, shot and killed himself in his home here at 4:30 a. m. today after wounding his wife.

Mrs. Buckley, struck in the shoulder by a 38 calibre revolver bullet, is in East Liverpool City hospital. Attendants say she will recover.

Police and Coroner Devon said Buckley shot himself because he was despondent over financial difficulties.

Mrs. Buckley said she was awakened this morning when her husband got up and began to look through a tool chest for the revolver.

When she arose and stood in the doorway to prevent him from going outside, he fired at her and then turned the weapon upon himself.

The shooting took place while one of the 10 Buckley children looked on.

Unexplained Decrease In U. S. Income Defers Balancing Of Budget

Financial Experts Study Treasury Drop In Relation To Slumping Stock Market

PLANS REVISED BY ROOSEVELT Re-emphasizes Announced Determination To Retrench

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—A big, unexplained drop in estimated revenues has postponed until next year, at least, the long-sought goal of a balanced federal budget.

President Roosevelt, in a revised budget statement, estimated at $895,245,000 the net deficit for the fiscal year ending next June 30. Inclusion of debt retirement, he said, creates a gross deficit $200,000,000 higher.

Despite the backslide since January, a gross deficit of $895,245,000 would be less than for any fiscal year since 1930. Last year's gross deficit of $2,811,318,310 was the smallest since 1931.

Notes Differences
The President carefully noted the difference between net and gross deficits in his statement. He said the estimated net deficit was $2,012,000,000 less than the net deficit for last year.

He also re-emphasized his announced determination to retrench. He said no further commitments would be made by two agencies which in days gone by have utilized billions—the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Public Works Administration.

The same attitude was voiced by the President in a speech last night starting the annual community chest drive. Discussing the need for curtailed relief spending, he said:

"Unless federal taxes are to be greatly increased, the expenditures have to be brought within the existing tax receipts."

This statement, together with the budget figures, again raised discussion of possible tax increases despite recent administration assurances there would be none.

Congress Concerned
Members of congress gathering for their special session next month were especially concerned with this phase. They noted that the chief cause given for the upward revision of the estimated deficit was a drop in expected revenues.

Last January, the President estimated this year's tax receipts at $7,293,000,000. Yesterday he estimated them at $6,650,000,000, a drop of $643,000,000.

He made no attempt to explain the difference except to say it was "more than accounted for by the reduction in the estimate of income and social security taxes."

Noting that these two items are primarily dependent on business conditions, some tax authorities blamed the lowered estimates on the stock market drop and evidences of lessened industrial activity in some fields.

The President's budget statement was primarily a factual comparison of the revised budget with the figures he submitted to congress in April and with last year's budget.

Leaves Congress Spending
He explained that the prospective deficit had jumped from $418,000,000 in April to a net of $695,000,000 because of increased expenditures voted by congress since that time and because of a drop in the estimated revenue since then of $256,000,000.

He noted increased expenditures of $444,000,000, but balanced against them "savings under other items" of $323,000,000. The savings were listed as $115,000,000 from a re-examination of the old age reserve fund, and economies of $208,000,000 "effected by administrative action in curtailing other classes of expenditures."

He listed specifically these unpredictable expenditures as having arisen since the April estimate. Increases under the new railroad retirement act, continuation of reduced interest rates on federal bank loans, unemployment tax refunds under the social security act, extension of the PWA for two years, and cotton loans.

FORWARD TWO, BACK ONE

Experts continue to hold stethoscopes to Uncle Sam's chest to find out what is slowing down his pulse and dulling his appetite for recovery. All they have learned so far is that the old gentleman is having a slight relapse, and they knew that in the first place.

In the meantime, ordinary observers have been looking at the patient's chart hanging on the foot of the bed. They have noticed that the line of his recovery is jagged, that it has been going forward two paces and then slipping back one pace, but that each time it has gone a little higher.

It touched bottom in July, 1932, when President Hoover still had nine months to serve. The line ascended for four months, then descended until it touched bottom in the bank holiday of March, 1933.

Again it started to rise, but five months later slipped back to a point halfway from the starting place. It wasn't till two years later that it climbed back to where it had been in July, 1933.

In the summer of 1934, before recovery had proceeded as far as it did in 1933, there was another relapse during the gradual rise from the bottom reached during the first one after the bank holiday. Another minor recession occurred in the first three months of 1936. Still another occurred in the winter of 1936-37.

In other words, the current recession is nothing more or less than the kind of thing that shows up on every recovery chart—a valley among the peaks.

Every recovery line looks that way, so why do the experts think this one should look different?

FOUR WOULD BE DANDY

Tentative peace proposals offered on bayonets at the end of loaded rifles last week by America's rival labor organizations raised the question of how large the peace delegations, if any, should be.

One of the organizations said something about sending 100 delegates. When the week ended, 10 seemed to be the popular estimate of an acceptable delegation.

But 10 still is too many. There is no need in this case for more than two delegates from each side, a total of four in the peace conference.

There would have to be Mr. William Green and Mr. John Lewis, of course. The other two should be deaf and dumb delegates, selected for the quantity and quality of their muscles. It would be their job to sit by mutely while Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis shouted at each other, interfering only when one or both of the labor leaders became so darned mad that he tried to spring at the other one.

Until something like this is done—until the two headmen finally get everything off their chests in a face to face encounter—there's little chance of a truce in organized labor's internecine war for members.

NO MIRACLES, PLEASE

Immediately after the election, the drive to place the question of a one-house legislature before Ohio voters next year will get under way.

Petitions will be circulated. Speeches will be made and written information distributed. It should not be difficult, in view of general dissatisfaction with the general assembly as now constituted, to get the proposal on the ballot.

Neither should it be hard to obtain a favorable vote once the idea reaches the ballot stage. Therein, perhaps, lies the weakness of the whole idea. The prospect for acceptance is too bright.

Ohioans are too ready to expect miraculous improvement if the two-house assembly is simplified by switching to the one-house plan. If their expectations continue to expand and are not deflated, the pain of coming back to earth after discovering there isn't going to be a miracle might prove ruinous to the success of the whole idea.

The job that must be performed by supporters of the simplified legislature is to keep the state from expecting too much, not to encourage it to expect more than possibly can be performed at the outset.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, October 20

A day of probable peculiar or bewildering experiences is read from the ruling lunar and mutual directions. The accent may be found on interests connected with the personal life. Letters, writings or documents seem involved, calling for due precaution and vigilance. Property or land values may be enhanced by these agencies or through the manipulation of some subtle or secret influence.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves immersed in a year in which secrecy, subtlety or some form of peculiarity, intrigue or collusion may be necessary to manage affairs adroitly. Old folks are likely to be involved, with letters, writings or documents important.

A child born on this day may be serious, clever, persistent and dependable, although it may have certain peculiar or subtle traits of character and mentality. It may gain its ends by intrigue or connivance.

No doubt the fellows who are running the Japanese end of the war in China will make note of all that talk about boycotting Japanese products for future action—if any.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The metropolis has few well-known head waiters any more. Those who have not been supplanted have gone into the restaurant business on their own—the dream of every one from boy days on. Too, head waiting is not the profitable calling it once was.

The head waiter was a personage in the old days. He not only greeted you with carpet-kissing genuflections, but if you "belonged" he stopped at your table several times during the evening to pay little compliments. He escorted you not only to the door but often to your cab.

Quite a number grew rich on tips alone. And a handful fabulously so on market information. Nobody knows exactly what happened to the business of head waiting. The decadence set in about ten years ago and declined gradually until it became almost one of the lost callings.

Some say the speakeasy made the head waiter unimportant. And also there grew up a large number of cafe proprietors who began to greet the customers themselves—such as Sherman Billingsley and Jack Kriender, who also may send a bottle of complimentary wine to the table.

Frequently I pay toll on the Washington bridge and the one leading to the Hudson River Parkway. The attendants are efficient enough on both structures and I find no cause for complaint. Yet not once have I seen one smile or offer a cheery salutation. The contrast was forced home the other morning at a tollbridge in a neighboring state. The attendant not only had a smile, but sent us on our way with "Hope you have a fine day, sir." One wonders why New York has a way of squeezing out that sort of cordiality!

In my first days in New York, when nostalgia nudged me, I used to ride on the 5th avenue buses and I found a pleasant garrulity among the Irish conductors. Most of whom were not over from Ireland long and pined for friendly contacts and palaver. Today one finds a similar familiarity among the farm lads whose first contacts with the city are often jobs as servers at the various corner drink and sandwich stands.

There used to be certain spots, too, where the stranger at New York's gates could loaf and often see a face he recognized or now and then someone from home. Particularly was this true of the block-long corridor of the old Waldorf, Peacock Alley. My wife and I used to meet there when I came uptown from the news shops on Park Row, and we luxuriated in the deep-cushioned divans an hour or so—rarely failing to see some celebrity of headline importance. I had my first glimpse of Irvin Cobb there. His famous story, "The Belled Buzzard," had just appeared that week and no one ever before or since took on such mighty literary stature in my eyes.

From that crack reporter, John McClain, one learns the art of sail making survives. Naturally its artisans have thinned to a handful and those left are of venerable years. Their output now is confined solely to private vessels and their sail lofts are mostly on South street along the water front. All belong to the Sail Makers' Union, one of the oldest in the country. And that sailing is not lost to this generation is proved by the large number of youngsters who toddle to the Central Park lakes and ponds on seasonable days with their toy boats. It leads in all park recreations for the young—topping roller skating.

I am somewhat awed by those brash blades who greet a pretty cigarette or hat check girl they never met, with a chuck under the chin and a "Hi, Toots!" Also I have an itch, in the manner of Charles McCarthy, to mow them down. So I was heartened in a restaurant last night when one of the fresh-every-hour boys breezed in, pinched the cheek of the hat check girl and inquired, "How's my sweetie pie?" to see what happened. Blood seemed suddenly to run out of her cheeks and she stood a trembling picture of white faced fury. Then with the spring of a tiger she slapped both his cheeks, stamped on his hat, picked it up and walked to the door and threw it toward the gutter. Afterward, in true feminine fashion, she retired to her cloak room for a good cry. But she had had her moment—and it was a dandy. P. S.: She didn't lose her job, either.

Two Issues Due at Special Session of Congress

Two major issues face the special session of congress called for Nov. 15 by President Roosevelt. Legislation regulating wages and hours of labor and some program of farm relief are both scheduled. Key to the farm plan legislation will probably be Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's plan for the "ever-normal granary", providing for storage of surplus crops on bumper years and their distribution on lean seasons, thus equalizing seasonal differences in crop production.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

VARIED DIET
NOWADAYS WE hear little about "auto-intoxication". This disorder used to be met quite frequently. In most instances, it was the result of fermentation and putrefaction of the bowel content. Faulty evacuation or persistent constipation was a common cause.

Everybody knows that when there is marked delay in normal elimination from the body of its waste products, more or less serious ill effects will occur. These waste materials, which are harmful if retained, are removed through certain avenues.

Some waste products are passed off through the lungs. Others escape through the sweat glands located in the skin. A goodly portion of waste material is excreted from the body in the form of urine, by the action of the kidney.

The largest bulk of waste lodges in the intestinal tract until it is eliminated. This mass is evacuated after all the nutritional value has been absorbed. Whatever is left is pure waste.

Toxins Develop
It is easy to understand if this material is not eliminated it soon ferments and putrefies. Poisons or "toxins" develop. Their absorption produces self-poisoning, or auto-intoxication, as it was formerly called. Some of these poisonous substances have irritating qualities. More and more of them are generated if the mass remains in the intestinal tract for any length of time. In the end these toxins cause distressing symptoms.

The sufferer from auto-intoxication complains of headache, restlessness, fatigue and irritability. Occasionally he has heartburn, indigestion, nausea, headache and loss of appetite. The chronic victim rarely gains weight and lacks the strength and energy to continue his regular work. He has lowered resistance and in consequence is menaced by any one of the infectious diseases.

Any disturbance of the intestinal tract, particularly if associated with irregularity of evacuation, demands immediate attention. Do not resort to the use of drastic cathartics or other medications for the relief of this condition. They give relief but it is only temporary. Get rid of the cause.

Constipation is one of the evils of modern civilization. Our food is too highly refined; it often lacks "roughage", which is essential to normal bowel action.

The diet should be varied and include an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables. Above all, chew your food slowly and carefully. Avoid hasty eating and irregular eating hours.

FORWARD TWO, BACK ONE

Experts continue to hold stethoscopes to Uncle Sam's chest to find out what is slowing down his pulse and dulling his appetite for recovery. All they have learned so far is that the old gentleman is having a slight relapse, and they knew that in the first place.

In the meantime, ordinary observers have been looking at the patient's chart hanging on the foot of the bed. They have noticed that the line of his recovery is jagged, that it has been going forward two paces and then slipping back one pace, but that each time it has gone a little higher.

It touched bottom in July, 1932, when President Hoover still had nine months to serve. The line ascended for four months, then descended until it touched bottom in the bank holiday of March, 1933. Again it started to rise, but five months later dipped back to a point halfway from the starting place. It wasn't till two years later that it climbed back to where it had been in July, 1933.

In the summer of 1934, before recovery had proceeded as far as it did in 1933, there was another relapse during the gradual rise from the bottom reached during the first one after the bank holiday. Another minor recession occurred in the first three months of 1936. Still another occurred in the winter of 1936-37.

In other words, the current recession is nothing more or less than the kind of thing that shows up on every recovery chart—a valley among the peaks. Every recovery line looks that way, so why do the experts think this one should look different?

FOUR WOULD BE DANDY

Tentative peace proposals offered on bayonets at the end of loaded rifles last week by America's rival labor organizations raised the question of how large the peace delegations, if any, should be.

One of the organizations said something about sending 100 delegates. When the week ended, 10 seemed to be the popular estimate of an acceptable delegation.

But 10 still is too many. There is no need in this case for more than two delegates from each side, a total of four in the peace conference.

There would have to be Mr. William Green and Mr. John Lewis, of course. The other two should be deaf and dumb delegates, selected for the quantity and quality of their muscles. It would be their job to sit by mutely while Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis shouted at each other, interfering only when one or both of the labor leaders became so damned mad that he tried to spring at the other one.

Until something like this is done—until the two headmen finally get everything off their chests in a face to face encounter—there's little chance of a truce in organized labor's internecine war for members.

NO MIRACLES, PLEASE

Immediately after the election, the drive to place the question of a one-house legislature before Ohio voters next year will get under way.

Petitions will be circulated. Speeches will be made and written information distributed. It should not be difficult, in view of general dissatisfaction with the general assembly as now constituted, to get the proposal on the ballot.

Neither should it be hard to obtain a favorable vote once the idea reaches the ballot stage. Therein, perhaps, lies the weakness of the whole idea. The prospect for acceptance is too bright.

Ohioans are too ready to expect miraculous improvement if the two-house assembly is simplified by switching to the one-house plan. If their expectations continue to expand and are not deflated, the pain of coming back to earth after discovering there isn't going to be a miracle might prove ruinous to the success of the whole idea.

The job that must be performed by supporters of the simplified legislature is to keep the state from expecting too much, not to encourage it to expect more than possibly can be performed at the outset.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, October 20

A day of probable peculiar or bewildering experiences is read from the ruling lunar and mutual directions. The accent may be found on interests connected with the personal life. Letters, writings or documents seem involved, calling for due precaution and vigilance. Property or land values may be enhanced by these agencies or through the manipulation of some subtle or secret influence.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves immersed in a year in which secrecy, subtlety or some form of peculiarity, intrigue or collusion may be necessary to manage affairs adroitly. Old folks are likely to be involved, with letters, writings or documents important.

A child born on this day may be serious, clever, persistent and dependable, although it may have certain peculiar or subtle traits of character and mentality. It may gain its ends by intrigue or connivance.

No doubt the fellows who are running the Japanese end of the war in China will make note of all that talk about boycotting Japanese products for future action—if any.

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The metropolis has few well-known head waiters any more. Those who have not been supplanted have gone into the restaurant business on their own—the dream of every one from bus boy days on. Too, head waiting is not the profitable calling it once was.

The head waiter was a personage in the old days. He not only greeted you with carpet-kissing genuflections, but if you "belonged" he stopped at your table several times during the evening to pay little compliments. He escorted you not only to the door but often to your cab.

Quite a number grew rich on tips alone. And a handful fabulously so on market information. Nobody knows exactly what happened to the business of head waiting. The decadence set in about ten years ago and declined gradually until it became almost one of the lost callings.

Some say the speakeasy made the head waiter unimportant. And also there grew up a large number of cafe proprietors who began to greet the customers themselves—such as Sherman Billingsley and Jack Kriender, who also may send a bottle of complimentary wine to the table.

Frequently I pay toll on the Washington bridge and the one leading to the Hudson River Parkway. The attendants are efficient enough on both structures and I find no cause for complaint. Yet not once have I seen one smile or offer a cheery salutation. The contrast was forced home the other morning at a tollbridge in a neighboring state. The attendant not only had a smile, but sent us on our way with "Hope you have a fine day, sir." One wonders why New York has a way of squeezing out that sort of cordiality!

In my first days in New York, when nostalgia nudged me, I used to ride on the 5th avenue buses and I found a pleasant garrulity among the Irish conductors. Most of whom were not over from Ireland long and pined for friendly contacts and palaver. Today one finds a similar familiarity among the farm lads whose first contacts with the city are often jobs as servers at the various corner drink and sandwich stands.

There used to be certain spots, too, where the stranger at New York's gates could loaf and often see a face he recognized or now and then someone from home. Particularly was this true of the block-long corridor of the old Waldorf, Peacock Alley. My wife and I used to meet there when I came uptown from the news shops on Park Row, and we luxuriated in the deep-cushioned divans an hour or so—rarely failing to see some celebrity of headline importance. I had my first glimpse of Irvin Cobb there. His famous story, "The Belled Buzzard," had just appeared that week and no one ever before or since took on such mighty literary stature in my eyes.

From that crack reporter, John McClain, one learns the art of sail making survives. Naturally its artisans have thinned to a handful and those left are of venerable years. Their output now is confined solely to private vessels and their sail lofts are mostly on South street along the water front. All belong to the Sail Makers' Union, one of the oldest in the country. And that sailing is not lost to this generation is proved by the large number of youngsters who toddle to the Central Park lakes and ponds on seasonable days with their toy boats. It leads in all park recreations for the young—topping roller skating.

I am somewhat awed by those brash blades who greet a pretty cigaret or hat check girl they never met, with a chuck under the chin and a "Hi, Toots!" Also I have an itch, in the manner of Charles McCarthy, to mow them down. So I was heartened in a restaurant last night when one of the fresh-every-hour boys breezed in, pinched the cheek of the hat check girl and inquired, "How's my sweetie pie?" to see what happened. Blood seemed suddenly to run out of her cheeks and she stood a trembling picture of white faced fury. Then with the spring of a tiger she slapped both his cheeks, stamped on his hat, picked it up and walked to the door and threw it toward the gutter. Afterward, in true feminine fashion, she retired to her cloak room for a good cry. But she had had her moment—and it was a dandy. P. S.: She didn't lose her job, either.

Two Issues Due at Special Session of Congress

Two major issues face the special session of congress called for Nov. 15 by President Roosevelt. Legislation regulating wages and hours of labor and some program of farm relief are both scheduled. Key to the farm plan legislation will probably be Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's plan for the "ever-normal granary", providing for storage of surplus crops on bumper years and their distribution on lean seasons, thus equalizing seasonal differences in crop production.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

VARIED DIET
NOWADAYS WE hear little about "auto-intoxication". This disorder used to be met quite frequently. In most instances, it was the result of fermentation and putrefaction of the bowel content. Faulty evacuation or persistent constipation was a common cause.

Dr. Copeland

Everybody knows that when there is marked delay in normal elimination from the body of its waste products, more or less serious ill effects will occur. These waste materials, which are harmful if retained, are removed through certain avenues.

Some waste products are passed off through the lungs. Others escape through the sweat glands located in the skin. A goodly portion of waste material is excreted from the body in the form of urine, by the action of the kidney.

The largest bulk of waste lodged in the intestinal tract until it is eliminated. This mass is evacuated after all the nutritional value has been absorbed. Whatever is left is pure waste.

Toxins Develop
It is easy to understand if this material is not eliminated it soon ferments and putrefies. Poisons or "toxins" develop. Their absorption produces self-poisoning, or auto-intoxication, as it was formerly called. Some of these poisonous substances have irritating qualities. More and more of them are generated if the mass remains in the intestinal tract for any length of time. In the end these toxins cause distressing symptoms.

The sufferer from auto-intoxication complains of headache, restlessness, fatigue and irritability. Occasionally he has heartburn, indigestion, nausea, headache and loss of appetite. The chronic victim rarely gains weight and lacks the strength and energy to continue his regular work. He has lowered resistance and in consequence is menaced by any one of the infectious diseases.

Any disturbance of the intestinal tract, particularly if associated with irregularity of evacuation, demands immediate attention. Do not resort to the use of drastic cathartics or other medications for the relief of this condition. They give relief but it is only temporary. Get rid of the cause.

Constipation is one of the evils of modern civilization. Our food is too highly refined; it often lacks "roughage", which is essential to normal bowel action.

The diet should be varied and include an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables. Above all, chew your food slowly and carefully. Avoid hasty eating and irregular eating hours.

HUNT BARGAINS IN STOCK SLUMP

Some Dealers Buying As Market Rides To-boggan

The same conditions prevailed in the curb market. Niagara Hudson Power traded at $4 a share on heavy volume, a dip of $3, or nearly 50 per cent.

Bond Prices Lower
In the bond market prices tended lower, with government bonds likewise down. They were the single resistant factor in yesterday's decline. Brokers said revised budget estimates were primarily responsible.

Most commodities sank, affected by the stock market break. Cotton futures at one time dropped about 50 cents a bale, wheat broke as much as 3 cents a bushel, copper futures were off and scrap copper was reduced 1 cent a pound. Cocoa established new low prices for the season. "Stop loss" selling carried raw hides downward and coffee, rubber and hogs sold off.

Volume was the heaviest on the decline since 1930, with around 2,000,000 shares changing hands in the first hour alone.

At the end of the first period the ticker was 12 minutes behind. Clerks in Wall Street brokerage houses burned the midnight oil until the small hours sending out the heaviest volume of margin calls since July, 1933.

Action of the Federal Reserve bank in raising margin requirements to 55 per cent automatically shut out much speculation, and the high requirement staved off most of the "distress" selling until today.

But the constant decline in prices since mid-August whittled accounts down to such a point that there was nothing for many to do but sell. Brokers asserted the slump had brought out a certain amount of money in new margin backing but many accounts could not raise sufficient funds and had to be closed out.

for the special session of congress—crop control and wage-hour legislation.

In order to match income and outgo in the next fiscal year, a sharp contraction of federal spending would be necessary if anticipated receipts continue to fall.

Just what this might mean to business and the stock market only time can tell. Many, however, interpreted the President's recent economy statements as an indication that the administration is definitely choking off huge outflows from the federal treasury, regardless of which way the financial weatherman swings.

Because the federal budget is one admitted factor in the present business situation, some observers also have taken into account various regulatory activities of the federal reserve board and the securities commission.

This school of thought, made vocal last week in an address by Winthrop W. Aldrich of New York, chairman of the Chase National bank, holds that federal regulation has tended to hamper trade and to puncture any trend toward stock market buoyancy.

Both the reserve board and the securities commission have been taking the pulse of the steadily dropping stock market almost hourly, but thus far have given no indication that they intend to drop federal regulatory bars in an effort to boost security prices.

Possible lines of action include a cut in the reserve board's margin requirements, which now make securities buyers put out 55 per cent of the purchase price in cash, and a relaxation of securities commission rules on market "insiders."

Pat O'Brien and Joan Blondell in "Back in Circulation", which shows Wednesday only at the State.

"Back in Circulation", showing Wednesday only at the State is a picture of the Cosmopolitan magazine story, "Angle Shooter" by Adela Rogers St. Johns. Starring Pat O'Brien and Joan Blondell it is an engrossing newspaper drama, presenting a behind-the-scenes view of the ethics of news gathering and the power of the press over lives and reputations.

Millionaire Dies
The story revolves around the death, under mysterious circumstances, of a millionaire. This becomes known, through an anonymous letter, to Pat O'Brien, editor of a metropolitan tabloid newspaper.

Sensing sensational news, he assigns his star reporter to investigate. Amassing a damaging amount of circumstantial evidence, the widow of the seemingly murdered man, portrayed by Margaret Lindsay, is brought to trial. Refusing to enter any defense to the charge, she is found guilty, chiefly on the strength of the stories unearthed by the news sleuths.

Amidst the melodramatic involvements of the murder trial, Joan Blondell, although her activities have been the moving influence in the persecution, becomes convinced of the condemned woman's innocence.

Facing the woman she has practically sent to her doom, she contrives to make her confess that her silence is shielding someone. In the clash between the two women, the underlying play for life and death is one of the dramatic highlights of the picture, and provides the solution to the mystery.

Muni Film Concludes
"The Life of Emile Zola", engrossing and brilliantly played story of the life of the famous French writer, whose activities changed the history of France, will conclude tonight at the State.

A double bill will be seen at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday. The first feature is "The Women Men Marry", a newspaper story.

The story presents a star reporter assigned to track down a cult of fake mystics. His managing editor takes advantage of his absence to win his wife. In the adventure of his assignment, the reporter sees his cameraman shot to death, he realizes that he has lost his wife and then, as might happen in life, he knows that he loves the girl reporter who has stood by.

Murphy As Reporter
George Murphy, former Broadway dancing star, is an excellent reporter. Josephine Hutchinson is the girl reporter and Cliff Edwards, the "Ukulele Ike" of stage screen and radio, is the cameraman. Claire Dodd portrays the reporter's unfaithful wife and Sidney Blackmer is commanding as the managing editor.

QUAKERS PREP FOR WELLSVILLE GAME FRIDAY

SALEM APPEARS READY TO OPEN UP THIS WEEK

Kirchgesner, Minamyer Expected To Return To Lineup

Forced into idleness yesterday because of heavy rain, Coach Carl Schroeder's Salem High school Quakers began today the task of getting into shape for their fifth game of the season against Wellsville High's Bengals at Reilly stadium Friday night.

Schroeder discussed faults uncovered in the Struthers game with the varsity squad in a short meeting after school Monday, then permitted the players to have the afternoon off because weather conditions were unfavorable for practice.

From present indications, the Quakers seem primed to go places this week. They appeared to have found themselves for the first time of the season against Struthers last week when they discovered they possess the power to come from behind.

The Quakers trailed by three touchdowns before they suddenly came to life and uncoiled the power that is really there. After finding themselves, they outplayed and outgained Struthers, although losing 20 to 13.

A mental handicap, brought on by the absence of two first string linemen, Bob Kirchgesner and Bob Minamyer, offers the likely explanation for the Quakers' early weakness against Struthers.

The Red and Black linemen undoubtedly felt that their forward wall was weakened by the absence of Kirchgesner and Minamyer and played as though they were weakened until discovering they still had power despite the loss of the two regulars.

The return of Kirchgesner, 185-pound right guard, and Minamyer, 170-pound right end, to the lineup is expected to give the Quaker forward wall full strength for its test this week.

Kirchgesner and Minamyer were both unable to play against Struthers because of injuries received in the East Liverpool game the week before.

Never a cinch for the Quakers, Wellsville will be just as tough as ever to get by this Friday. The Bengals have won two and lost three games to date. They have defeated Youngstown Sciencetown, 19 to 0, and East Palestine, 39 to 0, while they have lost to Edinburg City, Pa., 32 to 14; Alliance, 13 to 0 and Toronto, 19 to 7.

Injuries will deprive the Bengals of two regulars in their game with the Quakers. Clyde Hurd, first string center, is laid up with a broken cheek bone, while Bud Zahradnik, veteran end, will be out of the lineup because of two broken ribs.

COOPER-SMITH GOLF WINNERS

Pocket First Place Money In Oklahoma City Four-Ball Event

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19.—Horton Smith and Harry Cooper rattled each other on the back today, tied their purse strings around $1,200, and pocketed the championship of Oklahoma City's first annual $5,000 four-ball golf tournament.

Favorites when the tournament started Thursday, the Chicago sharpshooters battled 14 other crack professionals, two by two, over 126 holes in Oklahoma's worst weather and came up with five victories and two defeats for 12 points.

Here's how the select field finished the invitation event:

Second—Ray Mangrum, Dayton, and Johnny Revolta, Chicago, plus $9,800.

Third—Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, and Jimmy Hines, New York, plus $3,800.

Fourth—Paul Rynyan, White Plains, N. Y., and Lawson Little, Chicago, plus $2,600.

Fifth—Ky Laffoon and Dick Metz, both Chicago, plus $1,500.

Sixth—Ralph Guldahl, Chicago, and Billy Burke, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., minus $5,450.

Seventh—Zell Eaton and Francis Scheider, both Oklahoma City, minus $3,800.

Eight—Johnny Thompson, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, and Tommy Armour, Chicago, minus $4,250.

Smith and Cooper, who also won $100 for the low ball of the tournament, staged a 63, whipped Guldahl and Burke in yesterday's final round, 3-up.

Revolta and Mangrum, who had pushed the victors closely, tried vainly to overtake them by overpowering Armour and Thompson but the long-hitting Thompson staved off the attack and Revolta and Mangrum barely nosed them out, one up.

Star Stricken

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19.—The football season ended abruptly last night for Edward "Sonny" O'Malley, Cleveland sophomore tackle on the John Carroll university grid team. O'Malley was stricken with acute appendicitis and underwent an operation at St. John hospital.

BOWLING RESULTS

Top rankers in two city bowling leagues remained unchanged last night as the Ohio Edison continued to hold first place in the American league and the Masonic temple stayed out in front in the Quaker City circuit at the Grate Recreation lanes.

Paced by Brad Akens, who hit 565, the Edisonites won two out of three games from Mullins Foremen to remain on top in the American league. Other matches in this circuit saw Reich Sports win two out of three from the Masons; Mullins Press Room win two of three from Fernengel's Colts and the Electric Furnace take two out of three from the Forgotten Five.

The Colonial Billiards stuck on the top rung of the ladder in the Quaker City loop by winning three games from the East End on a forfeit.

Carl Stambaugh had the high three game score in the Quaker league as Flooding & Reynard Drugs won three from the Harris Garage; the Pure Oils took two out of three from the Salem Motor; Althouse's won two out of three from Schuller's; the Economy V-8's won three from the Tigers and the Golden Eagle took two out of three from Winona.

LUCAS LEADING STATE SCORERS WITH 30 POINTS

Four Players Close Behind Flashy Reserve Backfield Ace

COLUMBUS, Oct. 19.—Johnny Lucas, Western Reserve's flashy halfback from Sharpville, Pa., held a touchdown lead over the rest of the pack today as Ohio's individual scorers dashed into the second half of the race, but four players were right on his heels in a second-place tie.

The Red Cat sophomore, scoring at least once in each of Reserve's four games, has 30 points as the result of five touchdown jaunts. Ray Zeh of Reserve, who won the 1935 national scoring honors with 112 points, had 67 that year at the end of four contests. Norm Schoen of Ballwin-Wallace had 49 for the first four last year and they went on to take the national crown with 117.

Lucas moved out front Saturday as he contributed a touchdown to Reserve's 21 to 7 conquest of Baldwin-Wallace. Slovak of Toledo and Metzger of Miami, who were tied with Lucas for the lead a week ago, failed to tally and stayed at 24. Garcia of Akron and Bloom of Hiram scored a pair of touchdowns each to go into the second place tie. Bloom's 24 points being the greatest total a Terrier ball-totter has amassed in several years.

Bloom was held scoreless in the first two contests, but counted twice to beat Grove City and then crossed Altheim's goal line twice last week as his team dropped a 21 to 19 verdict.

Feeney of Defiance and Cunahan of Wooster had one niche all to themselves, their field goals being the only ones booted for or against an Ohio team this season. Bill Kelly, Dayton's stellar lineman topped the point-after-touchdown kickers with 10, but Zemla of Akron was pushing him with nine.

Closeness of the individual battle is shown by the fact that 44 players have scored two or more touchdowns, while the leader has but five.

Here are the leaders:

Nineteen others have 12 points each as the result of two touchdowns. They are: Meachan of Akron, Davidson of Baldwin-Wallace, Mechovsky of Case, Banks and Padley of Dayton, Snyder and Orme of Denison, Zelins of Heidelberg, Scheible and Storms of Miami, Nardi of Ohio State, Malone of Ohio Northern, Maher of Toledo, Keller of Western Reserve, Farley and Cummings of Xavier, Stewart of Bowling Green, Wilcox of Ohio university and Payne of Rio Grande.

Offers Big Purse For Race Between Seabiscuit, Rival

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—William Kyne, general manager of the Bay Meadows (Calif.) track, today offered $15,000 for a match race between C. S. Howard's Seabiscuit and T. P. Morgan's Heffly, the pair that raced to a dead heat in the Laurel stakes last Saturday.

Kyne would stage the race Oct. 30 at a mile and a sixteenth with Seabiscuit carrying 126 pounds and Heffly, 120. Seabiscuit's handlers were said to favor the race but L. T. Whitehill, trainer of Heffly, is waiting for the weights to be announced for Saturday's running of the Maryland handicap at Laurel before making a decision.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, owner of the Milky Way stable, still holds a slim margin in the battle for leading money winning horse of the year. Mrs. Mars' horses have won $188,500 as against $187,000 earned by Howard's thoroughbreds. Seabiscuit has accounted for the greater part of Howard's winnings while Mrs. Mars' earnings have been well divided although Tiger and the ill-fated Sky Larking top the list.

Chicago Cubs Bid For Tony Lazzeri

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The Chicago Cubs today were in the field which is bidding for the services of Tony Lazzeri, slugging star of the recent World Series and since then unconditionally released by the Champion New York Yankees.

Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago National league team, said Lazzeri had accepted an invitation to confer here relative to joining the Cubs—but Wrigley declined to say whether Lazzeri has been, or would be, offered a post as scout, coach or manager in 1939. Charlie Grimm is under contract to pilot the Cubs again next year.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Flash—The Pittsburgh Pirates will be broken up, if they can get what they want . . . except for Pitchers Bakers, Tobin and Bowman; Catcher Todd and Infielders Brubaker and Handley, they're ready to shoot the works—Arky Vaughn is definitely on the block.

Not since this corner can remember have so many top flight football team been on the outside looking in this early in the season . . . Solly Krieger, the middleweight, is running for councilman in one of the Brooklyn districts and may make it . . . on his way home to Memphis, Bill Terry stopped off in Richmond and presented Eddie Moore, owner of the Colts, with a Giant wide-breaker and two balls autographed by every member of the team.

Is it Cleveland or St. Louis for Tony Lazzeri? . . . Mike Jacobs and Joe Gould spotted walking up Sixth Avenue in their new camel's hair topcoats . . . one of the strongest all-star teams in any league (colts or pro) could be assembled from the Smiths, Johnsons and Millers in the National pro league . . . five Smiths, as many Johnsons and four Millers do their stuff regularly in that loop . . . and here's another odd one: When the Green Bay Packers lined up against the Cleveland Rams Sunday, Mike Michalske, a native of Cleveland, played guard for Green Bay, while Richard Zoll, who hails from Green Bay, was at guard for the Rams.

Attention, Mr. Alan Gould: Western scouts say you should not overlook a guy named Popovich, now running wild for U. of Montana, when making your All-American sections . . . this guy is very regular at halfback—never flies the white flag and when he gets off to a fast lope can click those furlongs off like War Admiral . . . also, Colorado wants you to keep an eye on a bird named Byron "Whizzer" White of Colorado U.

They say this White is just as good as Dutch Clark (whom you discovered) . . . last year, he ran back three kickoffs for T. D.'s including a 103-yard gallop against Denver U. and one of 80-yards against Utah.

Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State is making a habit of losing contests by one point . . . he lost to Illinois 14 to 13 in 1934 . . . last year he dropped a heartbreaker to Northwestern, 14 to 13 and so far this year has lost a 13 to 12 game to Southern California . . . more baseball deals due to pop any day now . . . they call Pie Traynor the "Caspar Milquetoast" of the Plats, but he slapped more times on his players this season than any other manager . . . I don't go around advertising it," says Pie, "as it hurts the players' sale of trade value."

SEEK CONTROL OF AAU TEAMS

Colleges Want Membership On Olympic Committees

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—American colleges, reopening a quarter-century old fight with the Amateur Athletic Union, drove in the first push today in their battle for control of American Olympic teams in four sports.

The colleges, through the National Collegiate Athletic association, petitioned for adoption of an amendment which, if approved at the quadrennial meeting of the American Olympic association in Washington Nov. 17, would provide for representation of representatives on Olympic committees governing track, crew racing, swimming and wrestling.

The amendment, drafted by the N. C. A. A. executive committee, was filed with Frederik Rubien, Olympic association secretary, by Maj. John Griffith, president of the N. C. A. A., two thirds of approximately 500 votes will be necessary for its adoption.

The amendment specifically provided that three of five members of the crew committee and five of nine members of the track, wrestling and swimming committees be college representatives. At present the A. A. U. controls these sports with nine of 13 members of each committee.

"We do not seek control of the Olympic committee," Maj. Griffith said. "We only desire to protect ourselves against the wrong sort of men being placed in charge of teams which we develop and finance for Olympic competition."

GOPHERS RANK NO. 4 DESPITE ONE SET-BACK

National Leaders Facing Stiff Assignments This Week

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Headed by California's Golden Bears, ten teams representing every major football-playing section of the United States except the southwest have been nominated by 55 of the country's leading sports writers as the gridiron's first "first ten" of 1937.

One of them earned its place despite an early-season defeat; four have been tied and all but one or two are in serious danger of being belted down into the lower divisions of the ranking next Saturday even if the wave of upsets begins to recede.

Minnesota, leader a year ago and No. 4 in the first 1937 list compiled in an Associated Press poll of sports experts, has an open date so the Gophers' place probably won't be any worse next week. Five of the other first-ten teams, however, run up against rivals that are ranked between 11 and 20 in the poll.

Here's how the leaders were placed, with the voters scored on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis. (First place votes in brackets):

First Ten
California (25) 442
Alabama (7) 364
Pittsburgh (8) 354
Minnesota (5) 299
Yale (6) 260
Louisiana State (2) 245
Northwestern 168
Nebraska 153
Fordham 108
Duke 96

California's Golden Bears, undefeated and untied along with Alabama, Yale, Louisiana State and Northwestern, will have to live up to every inch of the reputation earned if they expect to hold their place another week.

Next Saturday California encounters Southern California, a traditional rival which placed eleventh in the poll with 84 points and has given every indication of slowing a real comeback after a stag.

Alabama meets George Washington, also undefeated and untied, but likewise unrecognized in the consensus. Pitt, tied by Fordham, tackles Wisconsin, No. 16 on the list with 36 points. Yale faces Cornell, which garnered 17 points for 19th place despite its loss to Syracuse, which wound up 17th with 35 points.

Louisiana State faces the flashy Vanderbilt Commodores, who tied for 20th place with Auburn and Holy Cross, each having 13 points, and Northwestern runs right into Ohio State, which has been beaten only once, was 12th on the list with 63 points.

Nebraska, Fordham and Duke play Missouri, Texas Christian and Colgate, respectively. These three didn't get in among the first 20 but there isn't a push-over in the lot.

Wisconsin To Get Chance To Upset Pitt Panther

Stuldreher's Team Travels East Saturday To Meet One Of Nation's Toughest Crews

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Those up and coming Wisconsin Badgers, who've been groping around in football's cellar darkness several seasons, have a great chance to grab themselves a big piece of gridiron limelight next Saturday.

They travel east to take on the strong Pittsburgh Panthers, and don't be too hasty about ticketing Harry Stuldreher's team for its first defeat in five starts. Pittsburgh was ranked third this week in the Associated Press' nation-wide poll, but the scrappy Badgers, must be rated a chance to upset the panthers and send searing their current rating as among the second 10 best elevens in the land.

Pitt's scoreless tie with Fordham last Saturday may rebound with bad results for Wisconsin, but the Badgers came through their conquest of Iowa in good condition and will be hard to whip from now on.

Ohio State, awaiting the coming of Northwestern, went through a dummy scrimmage in the rain. With the exception of Forrest Fordham, who suffered a knee injury against Southern California, the squad is in good condition. Northwestern, watching movies of a close squeak with Purdue, warned against Ohio State's power.

Notre Dame, working indoors because of a heavy rain, will enter its game with Navy at South Bend in the underdog role, something unusual for the Irish. Elmer Layden warned his players that "spirit drive" only would earn playing starting positions against the Army-Napolis eleven.

Six men were on Michigan's casualty list as a result of the Wolverine's bruising defeat by Minnesota. Michigan travels to Iowa Saturday. The Hawkeye first strings were given a vacation as Coach Fritz Ruby sent reserves against the freshmen. Indiana's regulars, who balanced their defeat by Minnesota with last Saturday's victory over Illinois, were given an off-day, with reserves working indoors because of rain.

Four conference elevens will have open dates. They are Illinois, Purdue, Chicago and Minnesota.

THE GUMPS--HE MUST KNOW HER

"THE SILVER ROD MYSTERY"

by Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER XXI

"Just a moment, Sergeant, please," I called out when I heard him tell the officer over the telephone to bring Griswold in.

"Wait a minute, George," he spoke in the transmitter, and then turned to me with a puzzled expression. "What's the idea?"

"Does bringing him in mean an official arrest?"

"Why not?"

"Suppose he will come in willingly, without an arrest, then use your judgment after your talk with him, arrest him or keep him under close surveillance, as you think best."

"Got some reasons, I suppose?"

"Several."

"O. K.," he spoke in the telephone again. "Don't flash the paper, George, or the shield, if he will come in willingly. Get the idea? Don't let him think it's a pinch, we just want some information, tell him."

"Thanks," I said.

"What's the big idea?"

"I knew he was coming back."

"Why didn't you tip me?"

"I came to tell you. I didn't know until a couple of hours ago."

I told him about Mary's letter, and the one she sent, and my hunch that she knew where Griswold was. Then I told him what she had asked—about not making a real arrest of Griswold unless absolutely necessary.

"Sure, why shouldn't she ask that?"

"But he came back, didn't he? Came back of his own volition. We didn't know where he was. He could have kept right on, made a complete get-away."

"We'd have landed him, sometime. We always do."

"With exceptions."

"Well, yes, once in a while."

I looked at the clock.

"They can't cover those ninety miles in less than two and a half hours, too much traffic," I said. Suppose I meet him and take him to dinner, at the hotel, here. Foxcroft will be through at court. Then we can have a session at Foxcroft's office—if you care to let me in on it."

"Suits me, Mr. Stevenson. But don't get sore—you'll probably be tailed along, while at dinner."

"Why should I be sore? If Griswold did it, I want to know it. You know the Foxcroft situation?"

"I guessed it. He fell hard for the Montiehl girl."

"Other young men have, she is intelligent, pretty, and now wealthy. Here's my point. This Howard Griswold is nothing to me. Foxcroft is my friend. But neither you nor I, nor any decent man, wants to pin this on an innocent party. He's in a tight place, if that girl who wrote me didn't lie, and did really see him coming out of the front door."

"I'll say he's in a tight place."

"But you've read, somewhere, that a man should have the benefit of the doubt?"

"He'll get it."

"Very well, and thanks, Sergeant. I'll be back in two hours, plenty of time to meet him. I suppose your officer over in Kingsbury has a warrant?"

"He sure has."

"Then you can formally serve it."

any moment you feel that Howard Griswold ought to be locked up. But I'll tell you this—it's very poor circumstantial evidence."

"How come, Mr. Stevenson? With Montiehl out of the way, the girl he is going to marry gets millions, with Montiehl living, she doesn't get a red cent. And he was there and in the house."

"So were others in the house, Brauman at the library porch, Morin on the porch, Professor Lardeau in the library, and who knows how many more? Furthermore, it can be proven that Griswold was never in the house before. How the devil would he know that the silver rod was a trick knife with a hidden spring?"

"You answered that once, Mr. Stevenson, you said he was an art sharp and might have seen others like it."

"Well, I'm just saying, that if a formal charge of murder is made, it's going to be a tough battle."

"All I want, so help me, is the guilty party."

"I know that, Sergeant."

I drove home with all speed, and on up to see Mary. I told her what had happened and how I believed that I had made it possible for Griswold to be brought in and questioned without a formal arrest at first.

She was extremely grateful.

"I don't guarantee that I can do any more. It depends on what he has to say, Mary."

"I know pretty well—it will be convincing, I am sure."

I told her of Mr. Colton and a detective having sailed in an effort to bring Professor Henri Lardeau back, along with the stolen painting.

"I wish they were over there now. I am positive that it was that man. Can't you see? Uncle Gerry caught him stealing the painting. Uncle Gerry had refused to sell it a few days before. This man was desperate to get it—so desperate that he killed Uncle Gerry."

"It's good logic. That reminds me, I want some absolutely straight information. That silver rod knife was on the library wall since you can remember, you say."

"Yes."

"As a child, weren't you curious? Didn't you ever take it from the wall?"

"I think perhaps I might have, but I am not sure, I wouldn't remember."

"Didn't you discover that it was really a knife with a ratchet spring and secret blade?"

"I never knew or suspected that it was a knife, or anything other than a silver rod, until you showed me that it was a knife."

"I'm convinced. Thanks."

I stopped off at the Forrester's to tell Sally why I wouldn't be home to dinner.

"All right, Harley," she said, "but if you ever turn professional detective I'll divorce you. I'm nothing but a poor lone detective's widow now."

"How about dropping everything, then?" I grinned at her, because I knew what the answer would be.

"No, for Heaven's sake, no, Harley. I'll never rest now until I learn the solution of all this."

"There you are!"

I had half an hour to wait in Greatport, and fifteen minutes of that I spent arguing Wally Foxcroft out of his determination to formally arrest Griswold and slap him in jail. The last bit of argument I had was what won him over.

"You'll make a wow of a hit with Mary if you have that done," I said and explained what she had begged of me.

"Oh well, it doesn't matter—we'll have him all snarled up before we're through with him, and then he'll be inside, looking out through the bars."

"Possibly, Wally, and then if they bring Professor Lardeau back with a confession of the crime, that will make you a what?"

He walked up and down his office a few times.

"Of all the damnable cases!" he cried.

I went out and met Howard Griswold. He was certainly a fine looking man, of thirty, or perhaps a year or so more, tall, handsome, intelligent appearing.

I had given Sergeant Harper and Foxcroft my word that I would say nothing, tip nothing, in no wise tell Griswold anything that might help him in his defense.

The talk at dinner was not very lively, mostly a few rather inane generalities. Griswold did not seem at all worried; although he was far from garrulous.

After dinner we went over to Foxcroft's office. Griswold was, like myself, a pipe smoker. I saw. We sat around and waited for Sergeant Harper. Foxcroft was having a difficult time of it to be half civil to Griswold. Then Harper came.

He looked at me, questioning.

"Go ahead, Sergeant," I said.

Foxcroft had a pad handy, ready to jot down whatever point came up. I had half a hunch that he wouldn't jot down as many favorable points as he did the damning ones.

"Well, Mr. Griswold, it looked bad when you disappeared, I suppose you know that," was the way Harper started it off.

"To me it looked very good."

"How come?"

Foxcroft scowled at Griswold.

"It was a telephone call from Cleveland and I had to get away at once in time to see Dean Anderson—he was on for just a couple days, he's dean of Heighon University."

"In Illinois?" Foxcroft asked.

"Yes, I believe there is no other."

"What about it?" Harper asked.

"It means that I resign from the small college in Kingsbury and go out there at double the salary, three times the class, and every advantage. I had been hoping to get it. I—er—"

He took some papers from his pocket and showed us an agreement. He was to go out in September. It gave the salary, every detail, and showed that there had been previous correspondence concerning it.

Foxcroft took the agreement and read it with great care. I saw him making notes from it.

"This could have been done by mail, couldn't it?" he asked.

"Not exactly. Dean Anderson was on to Cleveland and it was considered of him to save me a longer journey. He wanted to see me in person and talk with me. He arrived at the pleasing decision then."

Foxcroft frowned. I gave him a warning grin.

"It looked bad, slipping out like that, of course you know that," Harper repeated.

"This position meant a great deal to me. To stop, make explanations, and the like, would have spoiled my chance to see Dean Anderson. I knew that I would be back within a day or two. I saw no harm in it, see none now. In fact, I would have been rather stupid if I had failed to take advantage of the opportunity."

"Well, you went," Foxcroft said, accusingly.

Again I scowled at Foxcroft.

"And I came back," Griswold smiled at him as he said it.

"To begin with, is it true that Mr. Montiehl ordered you off his premises, for all times?" Harper asked.

"He ordered me not to come and see Miss Montiehl."

"But you did?"

"Naturally I did. She asked me to come. I am in love with her. I believe there is a saying that all is fair in love and war."

"This is murder."

"Just a minute, Wally," I cried. Harper looked over and shook his head at him. Griswold made no sign that the remark annoyed him.

"You met Miss Montiehl on the grounds on the afternoon of the murder?"

"Yes."

"Then what?"

"She went back to a garden party."

"And you went up and into the Montiehl house, didn't you?"

"Yes."

Foxcroft grunted at this.

"Why?"

"Well, it is rather embarrassing—"

Griswold hesitated.

"It was also rather embarrassing for Montiehl to get a dagger in his heart!" Foxcroft cried.

I'm not rich—but—

I HEAT MY HOME WITH Gas.

WE USE A CIRCULATING HEATER

"YES, they may never call me rich, but by watching expenses the Missus and I have managed to save a little each week. Had to figure costs pretty close to do it and still keep house the way we're used to it. One thing we found out—when we used old-fashioned heating, there were a lot of extra costs besides the fuel. Extra cleaning bills, replacing burnt out grates, doctor bills for winter sickness caused by uneven temperatures—keep track of these expenses because they add up."

Learn the facts about the cost of gas heating for your home. Call our office today and have a free survey made of your home. No obligation to buy.
